Student Artwork Designs Promote “Greener Skies”

Wayne, NJ – FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE – Earlier this year, students from Passaic County Technical Institute’s (PCTI) School of Communication Arts participated in a truck design contest sponsored by Green Sky Industries—New Jersey’s largest private recycling corporation. The design winners were declared. Both Monushra Miah and William Bonet eagerly awaited the moment they would see their designs incorporated on a new recycling truck. They needn’t wait any longer. Representatives from Green Sky Industries, Kathy Arciero and Cheryl Pavliv, were all too eager to showcase the students’ hard work.

As the truck pulled forward, Monushra was near tears. “I can’t believe it. It’s beautiful,” she said. Meanwhile, William posed in front of his design and gave an emphatic thumbs-up. The two students beat out the rest of School of Communication Arts in having their artwork published.

Congratulations to both student winners on their award winning designs. Thank you to Green Sky Industries for aiding Monushra and William’s artwork to be showcased on a brand new company recycling truck.
